

← Thread

Tom @TomSchulz · Apr 28

Yesterday, I had a heart attack

My cardiovascular system is completely normal & healthy

But last week I took the Pfizer vaccine and there are reports that it's been causing heart complications

Most causes have been ruled out and it looks like Pfizer may have done this to me...

The screenshot shows a health article from a website. On the left is a photo of a man in a hospital bed. On the right, the article title is 'Could the Pfizer Vaccine Lead to Heart Inflammation? A Report Found a Link to Myocarditis—Here's What We Know'. Below the title is a sub-headline: 'How worried should you be? We asked doctors.' and the author 'By Korin Miller'. At the top right of the article preview is a 'SUBSCRIBE' button. At the top left is a 'Health' category label with a hamburger menu icon. Below the category is a breadcrumb trail: 'HOME > INFECTIOUS DISEASES > CORONAVI...'

1.8K

11.7K

20.9K

Tom @TomSchulz · Apr 28

The number of people (specifically younger men) that've reached out saying they've had heart issues too post vaccine is astounding

Even people in my immediate network

"Low odds of happening" doesn't seem too low from where I'm sitting

 71

 1K

 4.5K

 Tom @TomSchulz · Apr 28 ...

Moreover, according to my doctor, there have been many more cases of my exact situation in this very hospital

Young men, 18-30 years old, going through mild to severe cardiac events post vaccine (even Moderna + J&J)

This is scary.

 154

 1.1K

 4.1K

 Tom @TomSchulz · Apr 29 ...

It's official. I have myocarditis.

Cause?

Either from a viral infection (which I have no symptoms of sickness) or from the vaccine

I think the answer is clear.

Feeling better. Should be discharged with medication later today 🙏

 88

 378

 1.8K

Tom @TomSchulz · Apr 29

Also, I'm getting a physician exemption from needing to take Pfizer shot #2

Make of that what you will

122

268

1.8K

Tom @TomSchulz · Apr 30

Discharged, back at home & on some anti-inflammatory medication!

I'll be sure to keep updating as I feel better and/or have more heart related events

Stay safe people and thank you for all of your heart warming messages about my health ❤️

